VTrans Solicits Applications for Bicycle and Pedestrian Infrastructure Improvements

MONTPELIER, Vt. –The Vermont Agency of Transportation (AOT) has issued a grant solicitation for new infrastructure projects that improve access and safety for bicyclists and pedestrians. In 2018, awards totaled $4.2 million for construction and planning projects throughout the state.

“These projects make it possible for more people to walk and bike safely in Vermont communities,” said Transportation Secretary Joe Flynn. “Municipalities across Vermont understand that providing good facilities for walking and bicycling are key factors for livability that can stimulate economic development in our downtowns and improve public health.”

The AOT Bicycle and Pedestrian Program improves access and safety for bicyclists and pedestrians through the planning, design, and construction of infrastructure projects. The program improves transportation options for commuters, visitors to the state, and recreational use. Vermont ranks fourth in the nation for the percentage of commuters who bike or walk to work and fourth in per capita spending on bicycle/pedestrian projects, according to the League of American Bicyclists 2018 benchmarking report on bicycling and walking in the U.S.

May is National Bike Month, and these grants will enable Vermont communities to expand and improve bicycling infrastructure so more commuters and recreational users can take advantage of the many benefits of biking for transportation, fitness, and enjoyment.
